

I want to run away from this day
Rewrite my name with a different clay.
I want to hide away from the nosy ears
I want to stay away from their striking spears.

Nobody understands me, nobody saved me
Will you even remember me, will you praise me?
I lived my life serving lies
I lived my life in disguise.

I look around, I see familiar faces
They walk their paths and leave no traces.
I'll stay like this for a while
You'll send me on my way and we'll smile.

I'll start running, I won't look back
My heart will be pounding, it will crack.
You'll see me off and on our parting trail
My soul will be crying "don't leave myself".

But you know me, for now I'll just be storming
I see the sun, it will soon be morning.
The day will come, I'll run away
But I'm still here, and for light, I still pray.